Make StressLess your “go to” for training, competing and performance at your horse’s highest level. Here are just a few of our latest testimonials:

“StressLess has been a life saver during difficult training phases with some of my young horses. There are a lot of calming products on the market, but I’m confident in StressLess’s results and safety. Rather than a product that only has short term effects, StressLess builds up in their systems and over time, I have decreased the amount of scoops I give everyday. I love that it doesn’t make my horses feel drowsy or dopey, but still eases their nerves to make our rides productive and safe. Aside from its calming effect under saddle, I’ve noticed a huge weight gain in my nervous, hard keeper young horses. Overall, my experience has been 5 stars from the efficacy of the product to the customer service. Thank you StressLess!” - Mel Montagano of Prestige Performance Horses USA, Riding Stable

“I am always looking for better products to help my horses deal with the stresses involved with travel from Europe, from state to state and even with the stresses involved with day to day training and competing. Some of our old options provided a calm horse but they also negatively affected the horse’s energy required to compete and train at the FEI levels. I want to thank Betty Ledyard for introducing me to StressLess. StressLess is helping all my horses stay calm and focused in daily work, with crazy weather, and during travel and competing, but does not take away their energy and ability to perform at the highest levels!" - Elizabeth McConnell, Professional International Dressage Rider and Trainer, Inside Dressage Farm

Developed by a team of experts, StressLess is a unique equine supplement unlike the magnesium and B12 based products on the market today. What makes it different? StressLess is a casein-based feed additive that has shown an incredible result on horses of all ages.

Casein is the protein derived from cow's milk that results in a gentle anxiety relieving reaction in many animal species including horses, dogs, cats and even humans. The casein in StressLess comes from an all-natural process called an enzymatic reaction. When the final product is ingested by horses, the equine brain presents a decrease in stress reactions. Hot or spooky horses exhibit a decrease in agitation, over-excitability and nervousness.

The positive feedback from those benefitting from StressLess comes from every corner of the equestrian world: horse rescue organizations, champion trainers, junior riders, barrel racers, event riders, jockeys, show jumpers, dressage riders, Olympians, and backyard trail riders, among many others. They report receptivity to training and behavior modification and a marked decrease in poor performance. Best of all, StressLess does not affect a horse's abilities in any way.

StressLess is the brain child of an elite group of research veterinarians, trainers and horse owners. This dream team set out to formulate a hot horse remedy that would be safe for long-or short-term use with no side effects such as drowsiness or impaired motor function. The supplement was given a palatable apple flavor with zero lactose and no preservatives.

The head of US distribution for StressLess is Betty Ledyard with her company Centerline Distribution, based in Florida. As a lifetime equestrian herself, she discovered StressLess Horse Supplement for her own equine companion and the results were so profound she knew she had to get the product out to a wider audience in order to help others.

Important situations like showing, traveling, medical procedures, prolonged stall rest, moving, adoption, meeting new animals/people, and regular training are all times when StressLess may benefit your horse's mood and disposition. Find out more at www.hothorsesupplement.com.
