

TRAINING, BOARDING & BUYING

Amber Smigel relocates to Trails End Ranch in Orange County.

With reining trainer Dallas Wedel moving his business to San Diego County, the opening at Trails End Ranch was perfect for dressage trainer Amber Smigel to move her growing training business. She was already familiar with Trails End Ranch, as her retired dressage horse PopGunn happily lived out his retirement years at Jo Ann Kass' beautiful Orange County equestrian facility.

Amber Smigel had been working in Southern California since 2007, most recently out of the Coto De Caza Equestrian Center. She really appreciates all the positives she has with her move to the more private facility. Amber is a key part of the barn management and she works closely with Jo Ann Kass. That makes the oak tree covered 15-acre facility even more to her liking because keeping on top of the horse management is as important as the training. A full-sized dressage court complete with mirrors, a large barn, corrals, turn-outs, tack rooms and trailer parking are perfect for Amber and her clients.

February 2018 - On The Move

Written by CRM

Wednesday, 31 January 2018 21:04

message.com

www.AmberSmigel.com